Feminine and masculine forms:

Nouns

(including articles, pronouns and plural formation)

- understand that every French noun is either masculine or feminine
- know that the gender affects the form of the indefinite article un or une
- know that feminine nouns often (but not always) end in e
- know that when we turn the statement j'ai un/une ('I have a...') into a negative je n'ai pas de ('I don't have a...') then we change the article from un/une to de
- know that if a word is plural, we cannot use un or une and instead use des (some)
- know that when talking about a specific noun in French we use the definite article le (m.) la (f.) l' (m./f. before a vowel) or les (m./f. plural)
- know that I can find the gender of a noun by looking it up in the dictionary where French nouns are followed by a gender indicator
- know that countries have different names in French and that each country is either masculine or feminine
- know that de becomes du (not de le) when followed by a masculine noun
- know that the definite article is used in French when saying the country, e.g. la France, le Royaume-Uni, les Pays-Bas
- know whether to use the pronouns il or elle (he or she) when describing what someone is wearing

- know that I can compare nouns by placing plus / moins and que around the adjective of comparison (e.g. Neptune est plus grande que Mercure)
- know that de translates as 'of' or 'some' and know that it changes when coupled with le to become du (not de le) and when coupled with les to become des (not de les)
- know that when using à (to) and then the direct article à + le = au (eg. au nord)
- know that different prepositions are used to say going to a country: en if the country is feminine singular (en France) au if the country is masculine singular (au Canada) aux if the country is plural (aux États-Unis d'Amérique)
- know a range of prepositions to describe the position of objects
- know when using the prepositions à côté de, près de or loin de, the de may change if followed by le or les: de+le = du, de + les = des

Feminine and masculine forms:

Adjectives

(position and agreement)

- know that adjectives of size are positioned in front of the noun in French e.g. un grand cercle
- know that adjectives of colour are positioned after the noun in French e.g. un cercle bleu
- know that, in French, adjectives change if they describe a girl or a feminine noun and that this is called adjectival agreement
- know that most (but not all) adjectives take an extra 'e' at the end of the word to make it feminine
- know that most adjectives go after the noun in French To know that if the noun in a sentence is plural then the adjective describing it also becomes plural
- know that the feminine and masculine form of some adjectives can sound quite different e.g. vert/verte heureux/heureuse
- know that, in French, the possessive adjective 'my' must agree with the gender of the noun and that we use mon (m.), ma (f.) and mes (pl.)
- know that some adjectives do not change when describing a feminine noun (orange, marron, à pois)
- know that if an adjective already ends in an 'e' in the masculine form, then it doesn't take another 'e' in the feminine form (e.g. jaune / rose)

- know that there are usually four forms of an adjective to describe- a noun that is singular masculine, a noun that is singular feminine, a noun that is plural masculine and a noun that is plural feminine
- revise that adjectives of size go before the noun and adjectives of colour go after the noun
- know that when a singular noun begins with a vowel, the possessive adjective ma is difficult to pronounce, so mon is used (e.g. mon ami / mon amie)
- know that when standalone adjectives are used, such as when saying c'est amusant, we always use the singular masculine

Key features and patterns of the language; how to apply these, for instance, to build sentences; and how these differ from or are similar to English

- know that we can use connectives such as et (and) and mais (but) to join clauses
- know that most nouns in French become plural by adding an 's' at the end, as in English
- know that 'en' is usually used as a preposition when the mode of transport is something you get into e.g. 'en train', whereas 'à' is usually used when you are not getting into a form of transport e.g. 'à vélo' (a bicycle)
- understand that I can use a model sentence as a guide for building other sentences
- know that tone of voice can indicate a question
- know that a cedilla is the tail mark under the 'c' changes the pronunciation of the c from a hard sound to a soft 's' sound
- know that a cognate is a word that is the same in both French and English e.g. un triangle
- know that a near-cognate is a word that is very similar but not identical in French and English e.g. un cercle
- understand that I can use known vocabulary, cognates and near cognates as clues to help me understand a text in French
- know that sentences are often structured differently in French and English
- know that, in French, a space is needed before and after ? and !
- know that compass point phrases can be added to the front or end of a weather phrase and it will have the same meaning
- know that sentences can be extended using et or mais
- know that some American and English words are borrowed by the French such as le hot-dog and le hamburger
- know that when building 2 digit numbers in French, we say 'twenty and one' or vingt-et-un

- know that I can use parce que (because) to extend my sentence and give a justification
- know some language detective strategies such as: recognising cognates and near cognates, guessing words by the layout of the page and using the words from before and after the unknown word to help
- know that I can use il y a to mean 'there is' or 'there are'
- know that there is no possessive apostrophe in French but that to say 'my mother's father' the French would say Le père de ma mère (the father of my mother)
- know that the word order is sometimes different in French compared to English
- know that metaphors and similes are also used in French and that a metaphor is when we say an object is another object and that a simile is when we liken an object to another
- know that there are clues in the words for the multiples of 10, eg cinquante - 50
- know that the pattern of building larger numbers changes beyond 70 by adding the teen numbers to 60, eg soixante-dix (70), soixante-onze, soixante-douze
- know that the word for 80 means 'four twenties' - quatre-vingts, and numbers up to 100 are built by continuing to count on from quatre-vingt, e.g. quatre-vingt-neuf (89) quatre-vingt-dix (90), quatre-vingt-onze (91)
- know that the French use guillemets << >> in the same way that the speech marks are used in English
- understand that existing written sentences in French can be adapted
- know that when standalone adjectives are used, such as when saying c'est amusant, we always use the singular masculine
